The Supreme Court in case of Melvin vs. Kessee decided that a Board of Election Commissioners had no right to throw out an election precinct where only two judges held the election, and granted a mandamus to commel them to count the returns from such precinct. See 3d Va. Law Reg., 284.

The Board of Election Commissioners' duties are purely and solely ministerial, and when they assume and recklessly exert the power to deprive citizens of the right to suffrage, they are striking at the dearest privilege of American citizenship.

One of the features of the boulevard is that a portion of it will be graded experimentally with sand-clay. This kind of parement has proved very satisfactory in Alubanus and other States, and it is thought that it will prove substantial and available here. Lawrence admits that he killed him, and says that the shooting was accidental, her and the course is said to show that the killing was not accidental, According to Lawrence, Eaton was accidentally shot while lying down, but from the position of the body of the dead man when found and the course of the gunshot wound the authorities agree that such is not in accordance with the facts of the killing.

Damaging evidence has been collected against the accused. A negress, Gertrude Henley, is involved in the case. It is said that both men were infatuated with her; that the woman favored the attentions of Lawrence and took Eaton's gun away from him, that he might be shot down by his adversary.

Lawrence will be given a preliminary hearing to-morrow.
